Connections with senior executives and leaders in industry and government

CILTNA members, presenters, speakers, directors, partners, and collaborators are among the most senior and well-connected people in logistics and transport today. Many are available for mentoring. Meet them at chapter and national events and on webinars.

Insight and thought-leadership

CILTNA provides its members with a continuous stream of thought-provoking ideas from senior executives and highly-informed practitioners, analysts, and researchers whose knowledge, insight, experience, and vision create new possibilities for strategic thinking and personal growth and advancement.

Events

CILTNA holds half-day conferences twice a year that feature senior logistics and transportation executives, practitioners, and policy professionals from across North America. Individual chapters offer a rich variety of events several times a year geared to regional interests. All provide networking and learning opportunities. Members attend for reduced fees.

Webinars

CILTNA delivers an ongoing series of webinars by experts on subjects of contemporary and lasting interest to Canadian and US practitioners and professionals. There is no charge to members. You will automatically receive notification by e-mail of upcoming webinars.

Newsletter

Members receive a weekly newsletter with a digest of important news covering regional and national events in logistics and transport. Included with membership. You will automatically receive newsletters by e-mail.

Knowledge Centre

Members have unlimited access to CILT International's vast collection of logistics, supply-chain, and transport resources in 7,000 global newspapers, magazines, and journals. The largest such collection in the world, it is exclusive to members and available at no charge.

Recruiting

CILTNA members include managers and faculty members at universities and colleges with programs in logistics and transportation. They can help employers who are recruiting the next generation of professionals tap into streams of high-potential graduates, including from CILTNA-accredited institutions.

International Connections

CILTNA members automatically become part of an international network of practitioners in logistics and transport. CILT International, based in the UK, is building a global capability to enable the sharing of best practices among its 34,000 members in 33 countries around the world. If you are involved in global trade and commerce, these connections can open doors for your business and your career.

Opportunities to Contribute

CILTNA is a virtually all-volunteer organization that welcomes participation by members on its committees, boards, and outreach and event-planning groups where they can influence the organization and shape the logistics and transport sector and its environment.

Designations

CILTNA members are authorized to place letters after their names to indicate that they hold an official designation pursuant to the Royal Charter conferred on the Institute in 1926.

Membership Grades

Chartered Fellow

This is the highest grade of member. To be admitted, applicants must currently hold a CILT designation and have seven or more years of high-level management experience in the logistics, transportation, and/or the supply chain sector. The FCILT designation may also be awarded in exceptional circumstances to individuals who have made an outstanding contribution to the sector or who have a position of eminence in the field. Chartered Fellows may use the post-nominal letters FCILT after their name. They receive all the benefits of membership and may participate in all CILTNA events and vote at the annual general meeting. Annual fees are $275 (plus applicable taxes).

Chartered Member

This is the advanced level of membership. To be admitted, applicants must have completed a program of studies officially recognized by CILTNA and have at least five years of experience in logistics, transportation, and/or the supply chain sector, of which at least two years must be at a senior management level or equivalent as evaluated by the membership committee. Chartered members may use the post-nominal letters CMILT after their name. They receive all the benefits of membership and may participate in all CILTNA events and vote at the annual general meeting.
